Doctrine of God; The Theology of Lordship
By John Frame

Since the appearance of the first volume in this series in 1987, The Doctrine of the Knowledge of God, many have been eagerly awaiting its sequel. This volume's central motif is that "God is Lord of the covenant." Frame demonstrates "how all of the acts, attributes, and personal distinctions that Scripture attributes to God are expressions of his lordship." This approach focuses "our salvation without ignoring or denying the large amount of biblical teaching on the nature and acts of God." There is a wealth of well-written material in this nearly 1000page work of theology. Well worth the effort to read and study the works of John Frame. 864 pages
